Recognise this?

Congratulations to Tony Rondel who correctly identified it as Godley Head. We received a range of entries ranging from the Coromandel to Akaroa heads. The pictures come from Barry Bowater's slide collection and were taken in the first instance in the Sixties with the second a few years later in the early Seventies.

Racing Rules Quiz.

Blue approaches the windward mark on port tack ahead of Yellow. Blue tacks close to the mark to round with the mark to port. Yellow approaches the windward mark close hauled on starboard tack. When Blue completes her tack Yellow is clear astern. Yellow, sailing faster, becomes overlapped to windward of Blue and luffs to avoid contact. The boats round the mark side by side and continue on the next leg. Have any rules been broken? Are there any grounds for protest?
